INTEREST AT SARATOGA

PROF. SMITH'S CASE

SARATOGA, N. Y., May 24.-The interest in the case of the appeal of Prof. Smith was early manifested this morning, and during the devotional service which occupied the first half hour, the gallery was unusually full. Mrs. Smith was present, accompanied by Mrs. Dr. Briggs of New York, Dr. Henry M. Field, Dr. Rollin A. Sawyer and Prof. Smith's mother and brother. Elder Yereance of New York rose to a question of privilege and called attention to an article published in the Evangelist, of which Dr. Field is editor. The matter complained of referred to the election of moderator last week. A commissioner protested against the advertising that was being given to what Mr. Yereance declared was "reputed to be a religious newspaper."

The judicial committee asked to have To=Kalon WineCo., 614 14th PHONE 908. VAULTS, 27TH AND K STS.my24 their report on the Smith case returned to them for slight changes. This was granted and the proposed change was made, affecting the rule for the hearing of members of the assembly. It was provided that the assembly shall be heard upon roll call, three minutes being granted to each member.

Dr. Young, ex-moderator, protested Surgeons Know The Value Dr. Young, ex-moderator, protested against such waste of time. He stated that the rule of last year caused the assembly to lose a whole day and a half.

Despite this objection the rule was adopt-

The inerrancy of the original autographs of the Scripture was claimed to be entirely outside of the doctrine of inspiration and independent of it. It was further contend-ed that the doctrine of inerrancy has a theological origin, not a biblical origin, and that the confession, as it stands, gives no support to the position of the prosecution.

Professor Smith then went on to argue that the implication of the charge contained

At this point the speaker said: "And now we have reached the point where we may examine the utterances of the last general assembly. I do not mean, of course, that it is the duty of this assembly to review or revise any particular decision of the assembly of 1803, with the idea of setting it aside. The District committee in this case voted 9 to 2 against confirmation, on the ground that the nomination was a breach of faith with the people of the District. The votes were cast thus: For confirmation, Gibson, Hunton, Faulkner, Smith, McMillan, Gallinger, Proctor, Wolcott and Hansbrough. This was practically a non-partisan vote, four of the majority coming from the democratic side of the committee. Senator Martin voted for confirmation because he had secured the appointment of Taylor, after pleading with the Martin votes of Indian agents, receivers of public moneys. The Cause of the Trouble. The cause of all this feeling, Mr. Chas. H. J. Taylor, was visited this morning by a race, dropped in during the conversation that followed and congratulated the new recorder of deeds. "I have not made up my mind when I will take charge of the office," said Mr.Taylor. "I feel a little 'groggy,' as the prize fighters say, from the reaction which naturally follows a fight such as I have gone through. So far as the personnel of the recorder's office is concerned, I am as green as a plum in springtime. I know nothing

"I am not going to be a bull in the china shop," he continued earnestly. "My entire object as recorder of deeds will be to facilitate in every means in my power the work of the office. If I can keep it up to the present high standard of efficiency which now distinguishes it so noticeably. I shall be very happy, and if I can improve in any be very happy, and if I can improve in any way possible the excellence of the system now in vogue there I will lose no opportunity in doing so. I want the real estate men of Washington to be my friends. I want to assure them that any suggestion they may, make by which their business with the office may be facilitated or more easily attended to will be gladly welcomed by me and as cordially adopted. I can only say, in a word, that while I am recorder of deeds the office will be run upon strict business principles, and that I will gladly welcome any hints or suggestions from any of the many people having business with it,

Regrets that the Senate should have consented to the appointment of an alien to a local office were freely expressed by Senators as well as visitors to the Capitol. Senator Hill, speaking to a Star reporter, gave expression to what is perhaps the real cause of this result.

"That nomination," he said, "could have been defeated with the greatest ease if there had been a single man on the floor with interest enough in the situation to make a fight. It is an axiom that what is everybody's business is nobody's business.

It is a most unusual matter for a standing and this was never more true than in the present instance. Had the District had an expression of the Senate to have its recom-Senator on the floor, intent on defeating this nomination on the home rule grounds.

Had the committee voted on party lines or had the vote been close I should not have been surprised to see the Senate vote contrary to the result; but with the vote standing as overwhelming as it did, with nine on one side and two on the other, it is almost incredible that the Senate should have so disregarded this important body. I fear that this makes a precedent that will be disregarded this important body. I fear that this makes a precedent that will be very awkward in future cases. If committees' recommendations are to be set at naught in this manner there is no longer any strength or safety in the committees system of legislation that is now and has been since the organization of the overment. been since the organization of the government in operation.

Disappointment at the City Hall. The news of the confirmation of Mr. Taylor of Kansas was received about the city hall with great disappointment, to say the least. It did not, however, come as a matter of much surprise, for the reason that indications were observable for several days past which gave little hope that the Senate would enforce an observance of the home-rule plank of the democratic plat-form. There was, nevertheless, a hope by the people whose daily business brings them in direct contact with the office that the Senate would, after all, finally reject

While it is next to impossible to get them to speak for publication, yet the general ex-pression was that once again had the Presi-dent and the Senate deliberately disregarded and trampled upon one of the few rights of the people of the District. And for the most part they seemed to think that the only thing remaining in the matter was to make the best of a very bad case.

Reported Conference With Mr. Brice. It was learned today that the recorderelect was so sanguine of his confirmation yesterday that he consulted the retiring recorder as to how he should best conduct the office. It is said that Mr. Bruce told Mr. Taylor that the very best way to manage the office was to so conduct its affairs as to win the approval of those whose money supported it. It is also said that the incoming recorder remarked that he was very anxious to learn just how Mr. Bruce had run the office, and intimated, continued as deputy because he was an ex-cellent official and one whose continuance in office seemed to be demanded by the people of the District.

Mr. Taylor listened attentively to what his predecessor told him, but is understood to have given no intimation as to whether he would make few or many changes in the personnel of the office.

The Force of the Office. Exclusive of the recorder, whose salary is $4,000 per annum, the force of the office is one deputy recorder at $1,800 per annum, two clerks at $1,200 each, two clerks at $900 each, 1 clerk at $55 per month, and twentythree copyists at piece rates. These copyists average about $55 a month. The number of the clerks and their salaries are regu-lated by law, although they are not under the civil service rules and regulations. The copylsts receive one-third of the recorded fee of the papers filed, and as many or as few can be appointed as are necessary. The whole force of the office hold their position subject, of course, to the pleasur of the recorder. No Fears for the Marion. Officials at the Navy Department are indignant at the report sent out from San Francisco that fears were felt for the safety of the U. S. S. Marion. They all express the utmost confidence in the safety of that ship and Admiral Ramsay, chief of the bureau of navigation, says he would not be at all surprised to hear of her arrival at San Francisco in a short time. The Marion sailed from Yokohama, Japan, April 9, under orders to proceed to San Fran-cisco. In order to break the monotony of the long voyage entirely across the Pa-cific, permission was given for the vessel to stop at Honolulu en route, but no or-ders were given to that effect. Consequent-ly her failure to report at Honolulu up to the date of the departure of the last mail steamer from there to San Francisco is not nearly so significant as the alarmists have tried to make it appear. The Marion, which is one of the old ships of the navy, is coming home leisurely under sail, and as already said, may have decided not to touch at Honolulu, Winds and currents may have favored a more direct course street, "why I went fishing in New Jersey and caught the biggest string of eels that you ever heard of. There is the tandem eel, that you have all heard of. When they go down or up stream from their quarters for the winter or summer they go in single file, one behind the other, like the primeval man. They leave exactly six inches of space between their noses and the tail of the eel in front. When an eel sees that the fellow ahead is lenthening this space he jumps ahead, and, seizing the tail of the offender in his mouth, pulls him back into place. I dropped my hook down right in front of a string of those tandem eels, and the balt was accepted, and I jerked out the eel. The one behind, seeing that the fellow ahead was running away, obeyed his instruction and seized his tail to pull him back, and so also did the one behind, and so on to the last one, and I pulled them out hand ever hand till I had a great mass of slippery eels about me." down or up stream from their quarters While a gang of workmen were making
